Surprise the World Video

The most memorable meal that Rev. Mark Miller, North Star District superintendent, ever ate was cream of chicken soup. That's because two strangers at a state park invited Miller and his wife to enjoy the soup and have conversation with them while camping one weekend. "If every Christian habitually invited different strangers and friends alike to eat with them, then we might surprise a whole lot of folks and they might start to question, 'Why did you invite us to eat?'" Miller said in the third video in a Lenten study series. "And then we would tell them our story: 'See we know this guy who took bread and broke it and gave it...'"

This week will you start asking God about who you can invite to eat with you? And then have lunch, dinner or even coffee over the table with someone new.
